

At the Defense Health Agency, you can practice as a civilian at locations across the U.S. and around the world. More importantly, you can find and build a career around what matters most – a work-life balance you want with benefits you deserve.

With a global workforce of almost 130,000 civilians and military personnel, the Defense Health Agency helps ensure military personnel are ready to perform combat operations and humanitarian missions at home and abroad.

Defense Health Agency civilian healthcare professionals practice alongside highly skilled military healthcare professionals and enjoy the unique employment opportunities and benefits that can be found by working for the U.S. Government.

OUR PURPOSE

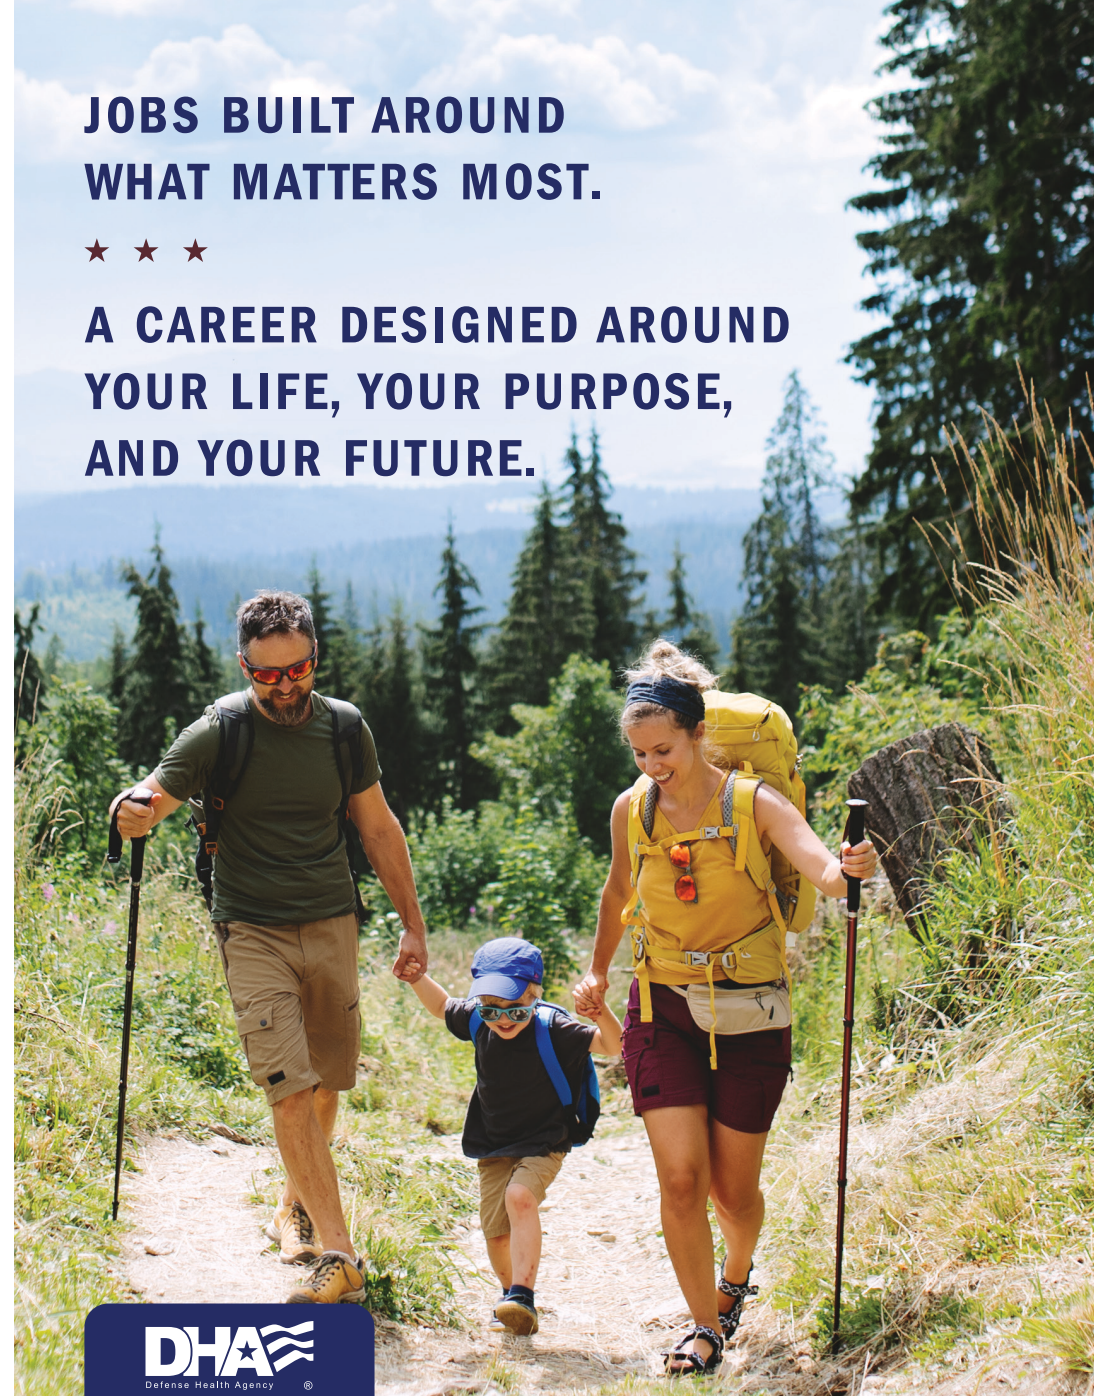

To Promote, sustain and enhance the health of our Armed Forces, veterans, and their families.

If you're ready for a career move that can give you the work-life balance you want with the benefits you deserve, then discover the wide range of civilian healthcare opportunities waiting for you at the Defense Health Agency.

JOBS BUILT AROUND WHAT MATTERS MOST.

A CAREER DESIGNED AROUND YOUR LIFE, YOUR PURPOSE, AND YOUR FUTURE.

FIND JOBS · APPLY ONLINE · LEARN MORE
CIVILIANMEDICALJOBS.COM

As a civilian healthcare professional, the Defense Health Agency offers you unique career opportunities that can give you the work-life balance you want with the benefits you deserve.

WORK AND LIFE OPPORTUNITIES

There are a lot of reasons you became a healthcare professional, but none included inflexible work schedules, burdensome administrative tasks, and dealing with insurance companies. At the Defense Health Agency, you get to do more of why you became a healthcare professional in the first place – to help people and enjoy life beyond work.

OUR MISSION

The Defense Health Agency supports our Nation by improving health and building readiness – making extraordinary experiences ordinary and exceptional outcomes routine.

Civilian healthcare professionals working for the Defense Health Agency enjoy rewarding, career opportunities that come with excellent U.S. Government employment benefits. As a civilian healthcare professional, you are NOT subject to military requirements, such as “boot camp,” military uniforms, or deployments.

SERVING THE MILITARY, CIVILIAN STYLE

At the Defense Health Agency you can live and work on your terms. With hundreds of locations across the country and around the world, our hospitals are state-of-the-art, have excellent staffing ratios, and offer patient-focused care.

As a civilian serving in DHA, I get what I was missing most in my old practice. I was tired of the punishing work schedule, dealing with insurance and the stress all that brings. Now, I practice alongside great physicians in a state-of-the-art facility, but in an environment that allows me to have a life outside the practice.

- Dr. Fred P., Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall, Fort Myer, VA.

OUR VISION

Unrelenting pursuit of excellence as we care for our joint force and those we are privileged to serve. Anytime, Anywhere—Always.

Where I was previously, I wore a lot of hats. I had to be on a lot of committees, such as credentialing, infectious diseases, etc. As far as my time was concerned, I had to split it with these meetings and my practice...for me personally, it is refreshing to no longer have to deal with that.

- Dr. Frank R., Gen. Leonard Wood Army Community Hospital, Ft. Leonard Wood, MO.

